
the sign cut system obviously has a good concept and works really well on windows (only problem is to find a dongle, imagine that there are only 500 people on the internet who know about this software....). But on the MAC-OS, the interface is horrible and i dont see why apple willnt make it a standard as windows does. You get no support, even though you need to reinstall, signcut keygen and patch, all the time, and you can easily sell your software from your website. Manually: First of all, you need to activate the dongle. You can buy it from After activating, you have to place the dongle in the right usb port. (don't try to use signcut keygen the dongle in random ports, because they are used to other devices). Open up your dongle manager, look for the dongle, signcut keygen it and the device will appear, what you can do is add it to your computer. After that you have to start up a program called signcut. (the signcut icon should be in your Start Menu or in the desktop by default). on the start bar, you can see the signcut icon, here you have to select signcut. (this is the way you can start signcut, but you can also add it to your desktop and start with File>New.....) Now you can open a window where you can click on "clear sign". After that a window where you have to type your Text will appear, in the typing window, you should find "Type'sign" in the menu. Select this option and your window where you type will show up. Now you can place your text and start what you want. This is all done from the windows computer. With the dongle, you can do all of that on a mac computer. You can add programs, cutting an image, all signcut keygen you want. (but no dongle for mac-os...), so far, i have only see how the windows computer works. Note: I have also installed this on the mac os, but a reinstall is needed every time. The signcut-pro works on mac, but i have seen its doesn't work in the mac... A
