He said, "We have managed to bring economic cooperation closer together, and we managed to finalize and sign and confirm the agreements in several areas. The process of economic integration is continuing." When asked about the problems at the G-20, Putin expressed dissatisfaction, "We were not able to eliminate the problems that were raised during the summit. We managed to do little more than to supplement the decisions of the summit with a number of new decisions of our own. I don't think that's a lot. Putin also added that he had considered the format of the G-20 to be adequate for dealing with the current international issues. "For us, this format is adequate for dealing with the current international issues. We're dealing with Russia, the
